When finally booking service online I received a confirmation email telling me I would be contacted by contractor with a date, and that I had to provide 24 hours notice if needing to cancel to avoid any charge. Contractor called me in the late morning to ask if they could come service from 122pm on that same day, which was terribly short notice given that I was already at work. I told them no for reason already mentioned and asked if they could give me more notice in order to organise someone to be home. To the contractors credit though, he text me asking if he could come in TWO days time, which was much easier to organise. As mentioned in the title, the actual service was FANTASTIC from all reports from my wife who was at home during the service. Very polite, excellent knowledge and efficiency, and problems have all been fixed without the need for any replacement parts except some new wiring. Hope all services goes this well in the future. Had this not been fixed so easily, I would have definitely gone with a different company and possibly different product for the future due to poor longevity of product and terrible service booking system.
